

The Virginia Humanities Conference

April 3 – 4, 2009

Virginia Commonwealth University

Humanities on Display

The Virginia Humanities Conference invites proposals for papers, presentations, or performances by artists, scholars, teachers, and students of the Humanities. We aim to examine what we put on display, how we display it, and why.

Topics could focus on how displays reflect or affect social change; on how developments in media influence the display and the reception of texts; on new avenues of research pertinent to display; on controversies of display; on critical interpretations of displayed texts; or on any topic relative to the display of the human condition.

Please submit proposals by email to:

Kirk Richardson, President
Virginia Humanities Conference
